

Atlantic International University
Introduction to International Studies
Mr. Michael Daniels, M.S., M.A.

I. Objectives

The purpose of this course is to provide students with a conceptual understanding of the international world system. This is accomplished through empowering students to:

1. Develop an understanding of the how the international system works (Globalization, Historical Developments, International Economics, etc.)
2. Study the current trends that are shaping the events of current human history and evolution (development theory, global health, food security, energy, etc.)
3. Synthesize new knowledge of the international system with knowledge of current trends in order to gain the ability to think globally and anticipate solutions for unpredictable, real-world scenarios

Therefore success in global studies requires an understanding of the international system, current trends, and keen analytical abilities to find solutions.

II. Content

Materials

For this course, we will use Smallman and Brown's text International and Global Studies (2011). This text is accessible from the AIU Library.

In addition to the text, we will read current journal articles and primary source documents such as those found at the United Nations Development Program page, Bjorn Lomborg's blog, the UN Millennium Goal page, and many more. Course material is highlighted in the bibliography section.

Course Organization

As mentioned in the section titled "Objectives", this course uses a multi-faceted approach to foster global citizenship. Therefore, the course is divided into three main sections: (1.) Understanding the International System, (2.) Current Trends, and (3.) Applying Your New Knowledge.

The first six (6) units provide the student with a summary of the international system. Units seven (7) through eleven (11) provide the students with a summary of current trends that now shape human evolution. Opportunities for students to apply their new knowledge can be found in the Extension Activities at the end of each section.
